MARRIAGE LICENSE AT SECOND HAND

A man by the name of Roberts in this town has a marriage license to sell, but at the present moment it looks as if he would be unable to dispose of it at anything near what it cost. It has just been discovered that there is nothing in this world so nearly devoid of any value at all as a second hand marriage license.

This marriage license was granted a week ago to Pablo Gomez, and authorized him to marry Petra Aranda. When Gomez applied for it he was accompanied by Mr. Roberts, who not only vouched for the ability of the parties to marry legally, but he paid for the license. Soon after its issuance it was recalled by Clerk Kirkland of the probate court, that he had heard in an informal way that the marriage could not be married for two reasons, either of which was a sufficient bar to matrimony. One was that she was insane and the other, that she had a husband living from whom she had not been divorced.

Mr. Kirkland at once set about heading off the marriage. He telephoned all officers authorized to perform the ceremony, warning them against Gomez and the woman, and he sent officers out in search of Gomez to get the license away from him. Gomez could not be found that day or that night, but twenty-four hours later, having heard that his legal right to marry the woman was questioned, he called at the probate office to see about it. He told the clerk that while the woman had been insane, she had been discharged as cured; that she had never been married before, though she had lived with a man as his wife. Gomez was evidently not sure of his ground however, for he suggested to the clerk that he had better wait a week until the officers of the law could ascertain to their own satisfaction that there was no bar to the marriage. The clerk informed him that now he had been warned, if he should marry and it should transpire that he had no right to marry the woman, he would be roughly handled for it.

A few days later Pablo confessed that the woman could not be married. Thus the license was thrown back upon Mr. Roberts who called at the probate court to see if he could not get his money back. The clerk was not sure of it. The fact of its issuance had been duly recorded, and he was not sure that he would be able to change the record.

He referred the matter to the office of the district attorney where he was told that there was no place in the law which authorized him to expunge the record or to mutilate it in any manner. The thing would have to go as it lay.
